

Introducing TOBIE LIEDES MEMBERS WORKSHOP INSTRUCTOR

Lewistown native Tobie Liedes has been drawing and painting since before her recollection. In her early teens, she started painting with oils, but switched to acrylics when she became pregnant with her first child. Tobie taught her first classes in watercolor and acrylic in the early 1990s while she was living in Wyoming. At that time, she was the director of the Washakie County Library System and taught her classes in the meeting room. In the early 2000s, Tobie moved back to her beloved Montana and settled in Helena where she worked for the State of Montana. She was very active in the local art group, and it was from that group that she learned about the Montana Watercolor Society and joined. During her time in Helena, she had several one-person shows, including at the Holter Museum and the Myrna Loy, where she hung both watercolors and acrylic work. While still employed by the state, she relocated to her hometown, Lewistown, in 2019. Upon retiring three years ago, Tobie began painting full-time and teaching adult beginning artists at the Lewistown Art Center. She is represented by the Moccasin Mountain Gallery in Lewistown, and has recently been contacted by a studio in Cooke City (slated to open in May this year) asking to represent her. She is a MTWS Signature artist.
